

MESSAGE FROM THE EDITOR

BY GLEN R. MCMURRY

Greetings and welcome to the Spring 2016 Issue of Perspectives. This is our second issue (of four) in 2016 and the response to our rebranding has been tremendous. As we promised, you can expect to receive directly to your inbox on a quarterly basis easily accessible and quality publications covering the latest news of our Division and Association, as well as cutting edge developments in all areas of practice. You can also expect to receive this information via social media on Facebook, LinkedIn, and Twitter! An additional benefit of our rebranding is the archiving of our issues and individual articles, convenient for your access and re-distribution on a later date.

This issue of Perspectives once again offers incredible and timely content designed to assist you, the reader in your practice. In recent months, the news was saturate with information regarding the government's access and decryption of your iPhone. Dan Terzian tells us how the government will decrypt our precious i-devices by...simply making us give them access.

You will also read the Adine Momoh's recap of 19th Annual Thurgood Marshall Memorial Moot Court Competition, where 38 of the best and brightest law school students from across the country competed for the truly prized opportunity to participate in the final round of arguments at the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Services in Washington, D.C.

Have you ever needed to change a deposition transcript? Sarah Williams educates us on the impact of Civil Rule 30(e) and what power you, as the attorney, have to prevent a witness from going vogue on an errata sheet. Sarah also educates us on what precautions we must take to avoid influencing a witness's testimony by virtue of their errata modifications.

We would also like to take a moment (once again) to encourage each of you become more involved in the YLD, both on the local and national level. A great way to increase your involvement is by reading these newsletters and staying tuned to the various meetings and educational opportunities happening every month throughout the country. These events are excellent opportunities to contribute and volunteer with our national organization. They are also incredible learning tools that will allow you to bring useful information and programming ideas to your local chapter. We have highlighted a few such events in the email delivering you this newsletter.

I join our Chair, David Goodwin, in inviting you to continue your contribution to our Division, making it one of the most active and vibrant divisions of the FBA.

Happy reading,
