Federal Career Service Division

The Federal Career Service Division continued to serve as a key sponsor of the 2009 Washington, D.C./Baltimore Public Service Career Fair, which was held at George Mason University Law School on Jan. 30. Almost 50 public service organizations and local, state, and federal government employers registered and attended the event. More than 300 students from the law schools of American University, University of Baltimore, Catholic University of America, University of the District of Columbia, University of Maryland, and George Mason University participated as well. The Federal Bar Association hosted registration for employers on its Web site and was represented at the Career Fair by Neysa Slater-Chandler, former chair of the Federal Career Service Division. In addition, the division hosted the employers' luncheon, which featured a keynote address by Jim Richardson, the FBA's immediate past president, a former chair of the division, and a founding member of the Career Fair.

Government Contracts Section

The Government Contracts Section and its Federal Grants Committee hosted a brown-bag lunch on Jan. 8. The featured speaker was Harold L. Cohen, deputy assistant general counsel for democracy, conflict, and humanitarian assistance of the U.S. Agency for International Development. During the program entitled "International Grants and Cooperative Agreements: You're Not In Kansas Anymore," Cohen spoke about USAID's process of giving grant monies, the organization's structure, and its relationships with foreign governments, NGOs, and Public International Organizations. TFL

| Editor's Note: Correction |

A book review of an autobiography of James A. Baker III (The Federal Lawyer, February 2009, p. 60) stated that Baker never ran for public office. In 1978, however, he lost an election for attorney general of Texas.
