

THE AMERICAN INDIAN LAW JOURNAL

Volume 6, Issue 2 Deadline: January 15th, 2018

Call for Submissions

The American Indian Law Journal (AILJ) is an academic collaboration among students, faculty, and practitioners. The AILJ fills a critical gap in the amount of scholarship available to those interested in the ever-changing field of Indian law. Indian law implicates a myriad of social justice concerns including: civil rights violations, protection of cultural resources, religious freedom, the loss of land and natural resources, and the regulation of environmental quality. Currently, the AILJ seeks Indian law scholarship from tribal members, practitioners, academics, and law students for publication in Volume 6, Issue 2.

For more information: please see
<http://law.seattleu.edu/academics/enrichment/journals/ailj>

Please address questions to: AILJ@seattleu.edu

Your questions will be answered by Derek “Red Arrow” Frank (Editor-in-Chief), Britany Kee’ ya aa. Lindley (Managing Editor), or Tracey Cook-Lee (Content Editor)