Minnesota Chapter Hosts Inaugural Court Camp for High School Students
By Reggie Aligada

Fourteen high school students participated in the inaugural year of Court Camp, a program developed in a partnership between the Community Outreach and Diversity Committees of the Minnesota Chapter and the District Court. This new education initiative was held at the Minneapolis Federal Courthouse during the week of June 18 – 22, 2018. A primary goal of the program was to help students better understand the justice system and prepare for a career in the law. In addition to Chapter Members, several volunteers from court agencies, law enforcement organizations, and law firms participated in the program. During the five-day camp, students participated in a mock trial, civics education and presentations by several judges, the U.S. Attorney's Office, the Federal Defender's Office and the U.S. Probation Office. Students attending the program came from several high schools, including Minneapolis and St. Paul Public Schools. Some of the students received school credit for participating in the camp.

Several local law firms hosted lunch sessions and panel discussions where students met attorneys, including several Chapter members, who discussed their career paths and areas of practice. Each student was paired with an attorney mentor who met with the student during the week of Court Camp. Students toured the courthouse, attended a naturalization ceremony and a session of Re-entry Court, a District Court program that focuses on providing intensive supervision and programing to individuals on federal supervised release who have recently completed a prison sentence. The week's programming culminated with a mock trial, with the students playing the roles of attorneys, jurors, and the judge in a criminal case.

In addition to the sponsorship of local law firms, Court Camp was made possible by a community outreach grant from the Foundation of the Federal Bar Association.

Reggie Aligada is the First Assistant Federal Defender in the Office of the Federal Defender for the District of Minnesota, and a co-chair of the Community Outreach Committee for the Minnesota Chapter of the Federal Bar Association.
District of Minnesota (1980) as well as to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals (1994), and the first woman to chair the United States Sentencing Commission (1999 – 2004). For nineteen of her years on the Eighth Circuit (1994 – 2013), she was the lone woman on the eleven-judge Court. Nevertheless, she persisted to give voice to the female experience as the Court analyzed the proper application of the law. An example was her majority opinion in Nelson v. Correctional Med. Services, 583 F.3d 522 (8th Cir. 2009). Shawanna Nelson was a non-violent pregnant prisoner whose legs were shackled by a female correctional officer to a hospital bed in the final stages of labor, causing permanent damage to her hips and back. The Court's six-five decision to allow Nelson's suit against the officer owes much to Judge Murphy's non-sensationalized, common-sense female perspective: “[it may be inferred from the evidence that the officer recognized] the shackles interfered with Nelson's medical care, could be an obstacle in the event of a medical emergency, and caused unnecessary suffering at a time when Nelson would have likely been physically unable to flee because of the pain she was undergoing and the powerful contractions she was experiencing as her body worked to give birth.”

Her strong sense of empathy informed her jurisprudence. In Gregory v. Dillard’s, Inc., 565 F.3d 464 (8th Cir. 2009), the Eighth Circuit en banc ruled that Dillard’s department store could not be sued for “discriminatory surveillance” of thirteen African-American shoppers, which included security guards closely following shoppers around the store then to the dressing room, where they would wait for them and stare at them as they exited. The majority affirmed dismissal of a § 1981 claim on the basis that “[r]acially biased watchfulness, however reprehensible, does not ‘block’ a shopper's attempt to contract.” Judge Murphy criticized the majority's interpretation of § 1981 as inconsistent with the law's purpose of protecting each shopper's freedom of contract: “Section 1981 does not require as a matter of law that within the context of closing a contract a customer persist in her attempted purchase despite overt racial hostility right up until a merchant flatly denies her service and forcibly ejects her from the premises.” (Note the lack of any punctuation until the period.)

Judge Murphy’s favorite cases were those involving Indian Country. A passionate historian, she loved discerning the understanding of the treaties’ original signatories, as she did in deciding that an 1837 treaty with the Mille Lacs Band of Chippewa Indians v. Minnesota, 861 F. Supp. 784 (D. Minn. 1989), aff’d 124 F.3d 904 (8th Cir. 1997), aff’d 526 U.S. 172 (1999).

Perhaps Judge Murphy’s favorite single case was United States Jaycees v. McClure, 534 F. Supp. 766 (D. Minn. 1982). It came eight years after she graduated from the University of Minnesota Law School, and a few years after a law firm partner told her she should not be a trial lawyer because juries do not like women. Judge Murphy ruled that the Jaycees must accept women as members based on the Minnesota public accommodations law, rejecting the Jaycees claim that its “men-only” rule warranted First Amendment protection. Although the Eighth Circuit reversed, 709 F.2d 1560 (8th Cir. 1983), the Supreme Court ultimately agreed with Judge Murphy, 468 U.S. 609 (1984).

I had the great privilege to clerk for Judge Murphy from 2007 – 2009. She was courageous, witty, incisive, determined, imaginative, cultured, spiritual, civic-minded, friends with RBG, and had great taste in jackets. The reminders that she was a singular figure were constant, like the handful of times I had the pleasure of driving her car from the courthouse to Bobby & Steve’s to fill it with gas. Judge Murphy was quite particular about her car’s seat position and music, and I had received some friendly advice not to adjust anything in the car. Judge was five feet tall. I am six feet tall. So I would fold myself into the driver’s seat of her Cadillac and roll down Washington Avenue with her German opera music on blast, understanding clearly that while many of us aspire to be like Judge Murphy, there is no substitute.

Challenges of Statelessness Today and German Citizenship for Holocaust Survivors

A Discussion & Re-Naturalization Ceremony

Following the ceremony, Ellen J. Kennedy, Ph.D., Executive Director of World Without Genocide, will discuss the problem of statelessness that affects more than 10 million people today.

The Diversity Committee and Community Outreach Committee of the Minnesota Chapter of the Federal Bar Association, along with event sponsors Germanic American Institute and World Without Genocide, and co-sponsors Global Minnesota, Mount Zion Temple, and the United Nations Association of Minnesota, cordially invite all members of the MN Federal Bar Association and the public to attend this free event.

Implicit Bias in the Legal Profession: Mental Health and Double Stigma

The Diversity Committee and Lawyers Concerned for Lawyers are pleased to host a CLE featuring Joan Bibelhausen, JD, Executive Director, Lawyers Concerned for Lawyers addressing mental health in the legal profession.

The primary focus of this program is to understand and demonstrate how implicit bias discussions in the legal profession must include mental health (including substance use) and stress issues. This program will begin with a general explanation of the concept of implicit bias and a discussion on how implicit bias stands in the way of lawyers seeking help for mental health and stress issues. While it is hard for anyone to ask for help, there is a double stigma against members of underrepresented groups who seek help or treatment for mental health and chemical dependency issues. This program will address the challenges minority lawyers, judges, and students face when seeking help for mental health issues, and a discussion of the current challenges and strategies to address them.

Lunch will be provided and 1 hour of elimination of bias CLE credit has been applied for.

Date: November 8, 2018

Minnesota FBA Diversity Committee Task Force

by Tim Bernadt and Natalie Bernadt

Leading the charge to diversify the legal profession by infusing the pipeline with people of diverse backgrounds, the Minnesota Chapter of the Federal Bar Association (FBA) is working with Minnesota law schools to change the face of Minnesota’s legal community through matriculation and enrollment of a diverse student body. In 2018, the number of lawyers in Minnesota was 25,252,1 79 percent of whom self-identify as white/Caucasian.2 This speaks to one of the major issues within Minnesota’s legal community: lack of diversity. Although slightly better than the national average, the lack of diversity in Minnesota’s legal community greatly decreases the effectiveness to truly serve the residents of Minnesota. The national voice of the legal profession, the American Bar Association (ABA), has four goals—Goal III is to “eliminate bias and enhance diversity” in the legal profession. In 2016, the ABA’s Diversity and Inclusion 360 Commission reported the existence of a “crisis in confidence that many Americans—particularly young Americans—feel about the fairness of our justice system.”3 The ABA passed Resolution 113 in an effort to address this crisis head-on while advancing Goal III. Resolution 113 explains that when organizations are diverse and inclusive at every level, the public and clients are better served and the legal profession is improved. The Minnesota Chapter of the FBA is working tirelessly to do just that and is successfully paving the way to change.

The Minnesota Chapter created its Diversity Committee to help address the lack of diversity in Minnesota’s legal community. The committee believes that diversity enriches us and inclusion empowers us, articulated in their value proposition: “Diverse membership generates diverse ideas. Diverse ideas inspire targeted action for the betterment of our judicial system. The commitment to diversity and inclusion is part of our collective duty as lawyers to uphold the rule of law and ensure that our justice system considers and reflects the diverse nature of our society.”4 This past year, one large focus of the committee has been developing ways in which the FBA can assist law schools with their diversity initiatives, according to Danielle Mair, the committee’s co-chair. The committee started having a dialogue about ways they can help the legal community increase the number of diverse attorneys in Minnesota. Committee members realized in order to increase the number of diverse attorneys, they needed to address the pipeline issue, which is a lack of diverse Juris Doctor (J.D.) students enrolled in law schools. The committee created a task force to discuss and brainstorm ways to increase the diverse pool of law school students in Minnesota.

Task Force

Chris Pham, a member of the Diversity Committee and graduate of Mitchell Hamline School of Law (MHSL), was selected to co-lead this task force. He explained the task force’s first step was to engage with the deans of three local law schools—MHSL, the University of Minnesota Law School, and the University of St. Thomas School of Law—to help begin an active relationship of support and encouragement between the Minnesota Chapter and each school. Additionally, this effort allowed the task force to learn what each school’s current initiatives are and what the Diversity Committee’s task force members could do help with those initiatives.

The task force aims to build community through action. Pham explained that one effort to accomplish this goal is to host FBA-sponsored networking events that bring practicing Minnesota lawyers together with enrolled and prospective students for each of the law schools to help foster networking among minorities. Additionally, the Minnesota Chapter will participate in “Admitted Students Day” to discuss educational and career opportunities with minority students accepted to law school but are undecided about which school to attend. Ideally the task force will begin implementing these events this summer.

Mentorship List

Another idea the task force has developed is creating a volunteer program in which practicing lawyers provide mentorship to prospective and current law school students. The Diversity Committee will maintain a list of Minnesota Chapter members who volunteer to be
The schools can then submit a request through the FBA for things such as a mentor for a specific student and subject or a complete list of attorneys willing to serve as mentors for their 1L cohort. Elizabeth Odette, an integral member in the task force, explained that this mentorship list provides a range of support. Mentors are available to help students study for finals, assist students with finding summer internships, help graduates prepare for the bar exam, or just provide answers to general questions from practicing attorneys. FBA chapter member mentors will also visit with prospective students and help them decide which law school to attend. “The idea is to give students additional network support from people outside their law school,” said Odette.

The task force’s goal is to strengthen and expand the diversity pipeline from law school application to establishing a career as a lawyer. Rather than focusing on what is not working, Odette explained, “the task force focused on how the Minnesota Chapter for the FBA can help existing initiatives at each of the schools and help generate new ideas and new initiatives to support recruitment of diverse students and help support existing diverse students at those law schools.” Task force members wanted to do more collectively to help with the diversity pipeline issues by increasing the pool of diverse students going to law school.

However, the task force acknowledged each law school has different needs. Each law school is at a different juncture in its efforts to address the diversity pipeline issue. In order to meet those unique needs, the task force assigned different members to work directly with each of the schools, mainly members who are alumni from the school. As a 2009 cum laude graduate, Pham will be working with MHSL. The school “has been innovative in their ideas for growing enrollment at the law school with respect to engaging more students of color,” said Pham.

The Gateway Program

Great in theory. Even better in practice. These words are more than just the motto at MHSL. They are an axiom continually proven true by the institution’s multitude of innovative programs that are changing the legal profession by opening avenues for legal education and breaking down barriers. The school offers a range of J.D. enrollment options that provide expansive access to an extremely diverse group of students. These enrollment options range from the traditional full-time student to a variety of part-time programs, including the first ever part-time on-campus/online ABA-approved program known as the Hybrid J.D. program and its sister program, the Executive J.D. program. The Hybrid and Executive J.D. programs provide high-quality legal education through an abbreviated intensive in-person learning portion combined with a robust online coursework to students from all over the world. These programs allow individuals who are serving in a variety of career fields and have work obligations or those that have family responsibilities to earn their J.D. while still meeting those work and family commitments.

Starting in 2019, MHSL will break down the door once again by launching the “Gateway to Legal Education” program, which offers free, online, law-related classes to undergraduate students.

The Gateway program is an extension of MHSL’s existing online learning structure. MHSL is reaching out to historically black colleges and universities, Hispanic-serving institutions, tribal colleges, and institutions with a high proportion of first-generation college students to offer the Gateway program to their students for free. “The idea of the program is to reach out to undergraduate students who come from populations traditionally underrepresented in legal education and the legal profession,” said MHSL Dean Mark Gordon. Being the only law school in the country having experience in teaching law in an online environment coupled with being an independent law school (allowing MHSL to engage with other colleges and universities to develop relationships with them) made Mitchell Hamline the perfect platform for pioneering this initiative. “What we realized is we could develop a series of undergraduate online introduction to law courses,” said Gordon, where students will earn undergraduate credit for the course. Students will also have an opportunity to come in the summer for a one-week immersion course that earns undergraduate credits. Students who attend the one-week immersion course will also get online LSAT prep from Kaplan for free and be provided air travel and lodging. Everything is at no-cost to the student. The Gateway program is funded by generous donors, not current students’ tuition.

Undergraduate students who participate in the Gateway program will be linked with a current law student, a member of the legal community, and a member of the admissions office to use as mentors. This is one of the opportunities for the FBA task force to get involved with the local law schools on the diversity initiative, explained Pham. This will be the same list of mentors that the task force will provide to the other two Minnesota law schools.

Students in the Gateway program will also be paired with a strength-finders coach and given the opportunity to do a strength-finders assessment. Current law student mentors can be volunteers from any of MHSL’s enrollment programs, allowing for a wide pool of diverse students available to provide mentorship and guidance to these undergraduate students. Essentially, the current student mentors can range from local traditional full-time students to active duty military serving overseas to medical professionals, paralegals, or a variety of executives, all of whom are working toward earning their J.D.s.

Dean Gordon expressed how for some first-generation college students, it is often such a huge step to be going to college that they are not typically thinking about law school or any graduate-level education. “The Gateway program is simply a great opportunity to allow undergraduate students to explore different options and get the type of mentoring and support they may need to be truly successful,” he said.

“What we really tried to do was think of every possible barrier that somebody from a nontraditional or underrepresented population in the legal profession might face and tried to eliminate the barriers,” said Gordon.

The Gateway program’s advisory board is chaired by Kevin Warren, the chief operating officer of the Minnesota Vikings. Currently, Delaware State University, a historically black university and Notre Dame College of Ohio, which has a high proportion of first-generation college students, have both signed on. Dean Gordon is optimistic that many other colleges and universities MHSL has engaged with will also be signing on. The first course started in January 2019, with more courses planned for the fall and next spring. This program, like countless others at MHSL, is great in theory. Even better in practice.

Enhancing Diversity in the Pipeline

In Resolution 113, the ABA stated “the legal profession and society are best served when the makeup of lawyers reflects the community in which legal services are provided.6 People of color make up 19 percent of the Minnesota population, which is continuously growing.6 The current Minnesota legal profession is an accurate representation of the population it serves, with 21 percent of Minnesota lawyers identifying themselves as a person of color. However, the future workforce outlook is not so promising, especially within the Twin Cities. According to the 2018 ABA Standard 509 Information Report for each law school, people of color make up 15.6 percent of the University of Minnesota Law School student body and 16.1 percent of the University of St. Thomas School of Law student body. MHSL is faring better with 23.4 percent of its student body being people of color.7 These numbers are an indication of a less diverse legal workforce in the future, which is contrary to the ABAs Goal III and Resolution 113. This lack of diversity in the pipeline for lawyers can be overcome through programs like MHSLs “Gateway to Legal Education” and the initiatives of the Minnesota Chapters Diversity Committee task force. Increasing diversity within the legal pipeline is the key to eliminating bias, enhancing diversity, and growing and maintaining a legal workforce best suited to serve the people of Minnesota.

the statutes that one relies on. Why, for example, attempt to rely on the consumer code’s prohibition of bait-and-switch advertising in a complaint that has nothing to do with such a practice? Why disregard the Utah UCC’s clear warning that failure to notify the seller of a breach is a bar to any remedy?

Similarly, a plaintiff who sues in federal court must abide by the rules of that forum: The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. And Rule 9(b) could not be plainer in its requirement that a plaintiff alleging fraud must plead it with particularity. Callegari’s complaint was so intent on global, generalized allegations on behalf of the universe of Blendtec purchasers that it failed this requirement miserably—not even identifying who sold the plaintiff his blender.

And that’s the tale of the blender atop the cabinet of Mr. Callegari. (OK, maybe it was a counter.)

THIRD CIRCUIT
Eastern District of Pennsylvania
Panel Discussion of Experiences of EDPA Judges Who Took on Delaware Patent Case
On Jan. 30, 2019, the Eastern District of Pennsylvania (EDPA) Chapter held a CLE event where Delaware Magistrate Judge Christopher J. Burke moderated a panel discussion with EDPA Judges Mitchell S. Goldberg and Mark A. Kearney on the subject of Delaware patent cases that the Pennsylvania judges had taken on. Due to two retirements and the Supreme Court’s decision in TC Heartland, Delaware became even more heavily burdened with patent cases than usual, and Judges Kearney and Goldberg volunteered to take on a number of these cases. The judges shared their experiences, gave insights into practice before them, and posed questions to the crowd about the future of patent litigation in Philadelphia and Delaware.

Eastern District of Pennsylvania
Sports Gambling in the Aftermath of Murphy v. NCAA
On Feb. 4, 2019, the day after Super Bowl LIII, the Eastern District of Pennsylvania Chapter hosted “Sports Gambling in the Aftermath of Murphy v. NCAA” at the office of Drinker Biddle & Reath LLP in Philadelphia.

In Murphy, the Supreme Court struck down the Professional and Amateur Sports...
Protection Act as a violation of the Tenth Amendment. Since the Court announced that decision, numerous states have initiated plans to allow for state-sponsored sports gambling. Professor Marc Edelman, who teaches sports law at the City University of New York and Fordham Law School, traveled down to Philadelphia to explore the legal questions that arise around sports gambling in the wake of Murphy and raise public policy issues that legislators should consider when proposing new sports gambling laws.

EIGHTH CIRCUIT
Minnesota Chapter
Minority Judge Reception
On March 14, 2019, the U.S. District Court for the District of Minnesota, along with the Minnesota Chapter of the Federal Bar Association’s Diversity Committee and the Minnesota Association of Black Lawyers (MABL), hosted practitioners, judges, students, and staff at the Minneapolis Federal Courthouse for the 2019 Minority Judges Reception to celebrate the ever-growing diversity of the state, federal, and tribal bench in Minnesota. Chief Judge John R. Tunheim and U.S. District Court Judge Wilhelmina M. Wright, along with Minnesota Supreme Court Justice Natalie Hudson and local Affinity Bar leaders, were present to introduce and recognize both the newly appointed and retiring judges within the various Affinity Bar membership in Minnesota. This annual event began in 2013, when then-Chief Judge Michael J. Davis hosted the first reception. At that time, there were 30 minority judges in attendance, with approximately 85 total attendees. This year, 78 minority judges from the federal and state courts, and 34 judges from the tribal courts, were invited, and over 200 people were in attendance.

Pitfalls for All STEM Professionals in a New Era of U.S.-China Relations: National Security, Economic Espionage, Racial Bias?

When: April 4, 2019
6-6:45 p.m. - Reception
6:45-8 p.m. - Panel discussion
8-8:30 p.m. - Q&A
Dear Minnesota Chapter FBA Member,

China was involved in 90 percent of all economic espionage cases handled by the Department of Justice over the last seven years, according to a report submitted last December to the Senate Intelligence Committee. This fact illustrates a new backdrop for thousands of Twin Cities S.T.E.M. (science, technology, engineering, and mathematics) professionals of all ethnicities navigating career opportunities and avoiding pitfalls in the 21st Century of U.S.-China relations.

Please join us for a program focused on educating all Twin Cities S.T.E.M. professionals, academics, and students—many of whom are Asian American—on two competing and ever-emerging phenomena in the U.S. justice system: potential threats on national security and economic espionage with the ascendancy of China on the one hand, and on the other, the potential racial profiling of Asians and Asian Pacific Americans resulting in accusations, such as the cases of Dr. Wen Ho Lee, Professor Xi Xiaoxing, and hydrologist Sherry Chen.

Featured speakers will include Brian Sun, a Los Angeles lawyer who represented Dr. Lee and Peter Zeidenberg, a Washington D.C.-based attorney who represented Dr. Xi and Ms. Chen. The government perspective will be represented by Jay Bratt, the Chief of the Counterintelligence and Export Control Section (CES) of the National Security Division of the Department of Justice, who will speak about U.S. efforts to safeguard national security and curb economic espionage.

The program is co-sponsored by the University of Minnesota's China Center, the Minnesota Chapter of the Federal Bar Association's Diversity Committee, the United States District Court for the District of Minnesota's Outreach Committee, and Kingsfield Law Office.

Registration:

This is a FREE event. FBA membership is not required to attend. Elimination of Bias CLE credit is being sought.

To Members of the Minnesota Chapter of the Federal Bar Association:

The Diversity Committee of the Federal Bar Association's Minnesota Chapter is proud to co-sponsor a series of events this spring exploring the topic of "Justice After Genocide." The events are the work of the Minnesota-based NGO World Without Genocide, and will run in conjunction with Park Square Theater's presentation of Heaven, which uses drama, music, and dance to examine the Bosnian War of the 1990s. Heaven, which in 2011 was presented by the Guthrie Theater, will run at Park Square from May 31 to June 23, 2019. More information about Heaven, including a calendar of performances and ticket information, is available here:

Among the events are the film Men Don't Cry, on the topic of war trauma in Bosnia, which will be presented on Thursday, April 4 (the anniversary of the beginning of the siege at Sarajevo); and a film and talk on Sunday, May 19 by Magistrate Judge Peggy Kuo, of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York. In 2004, before she was on the federal bench, Magistrate Judge Kuo was a prosecutor at the United Nations' International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia in the Hague, the Netherlands. While there, she and her colleagues made new law in prosecutions of perpetrators of sexual assault at the notorious Foca "rape camp." These successful prosecutions were the first in which sexual assault was held to be a crime against humanity and a war crime under international humanitarian law.

Minnesota Chapter Hosts Second Annual Court Camp For High School Students
By Reggie Aligada

Twelve enthusiastic students from several Twin Cities high schools participated in the second year of Court Camp, a program developed in a partnership between the Community Outreach and Diversity Committees of the Minnesota Chapter and the United States District Court for the District of Minnesota. This education initiative—the vision of United States District Judge Susan Richard Nelson—was held at the Minneapolis Federal Courthouse during the week of June 24–28, 2019.

In addition to Chapter members, several volunteers from court agencies, law enforcement organizations, and law firms participated in the program. During the five-day camp, students participated in a mock trial, learned about the judiciary, and heard presentations by several judges and attorneys practicing in federal court. Students attending the program came from several high schools, mostly within the Minneapolis Public Schools system.

Hayat Abdullahi, a court camp participant and aspiring lawyer, reflected on her experience at Court Camp. “Before going to court camp, I thought I had done all that I could to prepare for becoming a lawyer when I’m older... But going to court camp, seeing a real trial, and meeting all those different types of lawyers and judges put it into perspective for me that nothing could have prepared me more than actually getting a hands on experience.”

With an expanded group of Chapter volunteers and several subcommittees, the program helped students better understand the justice system and prepare for a career in law. Several students received high school credit for their participation in the camp and plan to attend law school in the future.

Each student was paired with an attorney mentor who met with the student during the week of Court Camp. Students toured the courthouse, attended a naturalization ceremony, and attended a session of Reentry Court, a program that provides intensive supervision and programing to individuals on federal supervised release who recently completed a prison sentence. The week of intense experiential learning also included observing two criminal sentencing hearings and watching the closing argument of a criminal trial. The week’s programming culminated with a mock criminal trial presided over by Judge Nelson, in which the students acted as prosecuting and defense attorneys. Meals were provided for the students by Bassford Remele, Maslon LLP, Greene Espel PLLP, Halunen Law, Jones Day, Carlson Caspers, Apollo Law LLC, Fredrikson & Byron P.A., Best & Flanagan LLP, and Gustafson Gluek PLLC.

The Chapter plans to continue the Court Camp program in 2020.

Reggie Aligada is the First Assistant Federal Defender in the Office of the Federal Defender for the District of Minnesota and immediate past co-chair of the Community Outreach Committee for the Minnesota Chapter.
